3rd Advanced Voice Function Assessment International Workshop
Madrid (Spain) 18th - 20th May 2009

'He came up at last weary and breathless, and planting himself in front of the bridal pair, drove his staff, which had a steel spike at the end, into the ground, and, with a pale face and eyes fixed on Quiteria, he thus addressed her in a hoarse, trembling voice ...'

Don Quixote, Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra.
XVIIth century.*

As Miguel de Cervantes knew well, human voice does not carry speech only. In fact, voice also contains valuable information on emotions, pathologies or anatomy of individuals. Being conscious of this, a group of European scientists launched COST Action 2103 on Advance Voice Function Assessment (AVFA). Now, the Management Committee of COST 2103 has the honour and pleasure to invite the whole scientific community to the 3rd Advanced Voice Function Assessment International Workshop (AVFA2009) to be held in Madrid (Spain) from the 18th to the 20th of May, 2009 and hosted by the Universidad Politécnica de Madrid.
